Keep your people safe and happy

Appropriate, presentable workwear is a key factor in occupational safety and wellbeing at work.

Our workwear collections always comply with the respective legislation and standards and are designed for the specific industries and occupations. No matter your industry, you can be sure that your company always meets the requirements for workwear functionality, safety, and hygiene.

We deliver clean workwear to your premises and take the used garments to our laundry, where damaged workwear is repaired or replaced if needed. Your employees will always have clean and ready-to-wear workwear available so that they are able to stay safe and keep their focus on their daily tasks.

Unified quality workwear can also boost your brand – it gives a convincing first impression, improves the recognizability of your personnel, and increases the professional pride of your people. And even more importantly: it shows you care about the wellbeing and comfort of your employees.

Renting textiles is a sustainable and carefree option – this is how it works

1 Collection design for maximum life with durable materials:

From first user to the next and beyond – we circulate the garment for a new lease on life when it is not fit for workwear anymore.

Every garment is used by many customers during its lifespan.

2 The best fit for ultimate comfort:

Adjustable features and classic, timeless design are some of the aspects we consider to ensure that our products fit comfortably on different body types and stay in use for a long time. Together with our customers, we make sure the garments are comfortable for their wearers.

Over 12 million pieces of workwear in circulation.

3 Procurement:

We procure durable textiles from our long-term suppliers. To avoid textile overproduction we produce your additional orders on-demand in our own production facilities, Prodems.

90% Öko-text 100
certified garments.

4 Washing and finishing:

Workwear is maintained with minimal water and energy consumption. We recycle water and decrease energy consumption with our heat recovery systems.

Industrial washing uses 55% less water than home washing.

5 Quality control and repairs:

The garments go through several people, and we do continuous quality control and repair garments as needed.

In 2022, 4.2 million pieces of workwear repaired.

7 Storage and final disposal:

We aim to recycle 100% of our textile waste to other products, raw materials or back to fibres for textile industry.

Aiming for 100%
recyclability by 2025.

6 Weekly deliveries and pick-up:

We deliver garments to our customers on time with minimal carbon footprint – our trucks never drive empty.

Delivered with optimized loads and routes.

We offer you workwear that is

- designed for maximum comfort and durability
- produced on demand for minimal waste
- delivered to you with optimized loads and routes
- maintained with minimal water and energy consumption

Our circular model promotes sustainability

Get more value from existing garments – shared footprint is a smaller footprint

We aim to get more value from existing products. That is why we repair more than 4 million garments yearly and promote reusability, where the footprint is shared by several users. Customised garments have 30% higher carbon footprint than our reusable Lindström collection.

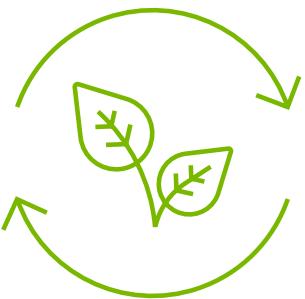

Conserve natural resources – use less water and energy

Around 60% of the CO2 impact comes from washing the workwear. We have optimized our washing process and have halved our water and energy consumption per washed textile kilo during the past three decades.

Avoid textile overproduction – maximise the lifespan

We only produce new workwear as per orders on-demand at our own production facilities, Prodems, to avoid overstock. We maximise the textiles lifespan with designing for long life with durable materials, repairing and reusing.

Support carbon-neutral future – choose the circular solution

In the end of their life cycle our workwear is given a new life as a different product or as raw material for various industries. By 2025 we aim to recycle 100% of our textile waste.

By 2035 we will provide you with carbon-neutral workwear service.
